Parkview Packnett Family Cancer Institute

Women's Cancer Care

Women's cancers warrant specialized care. At the Packnett Family Cancer Institute, there are teams of experienced, disease site-specific surgeons dedicated either to the management of breast cancer or cancers of the female reproductive system.

Dr. Patricia Clark, a nationally and internationally renowned breast surgeon, will join the PFCI in October as the lead of the Breast Tumor Site team. She is an expert in oncoplastic surgery, a surgical approach that combines the removal of a breast cancer by lumpectomy with plastic surgical techniques to minimize postoperative cosmetic changes. Dr. Clark joins Dr. Lindsay Hardley, a talented and experienced breast surgeon who was one of the founding members of the Breast Tumor Site team.

The PFCI also has three fellowship-trained Gynecologic Oncologists, who are surgeons that specialize in the management of cancers of the ovary, uterus, cervix and vulva. In addition to performing surgery, these physicians are also trained to administer chemotherapy. Together, they participate in a multidisciplinary team of other practitioners who focus on women's reproductive cancers.

Both the Breast Tumor and Gynecologic Oncology Tumor Site Teams are thriving, growing and ready to see all new patients.
